A 200-word (maximum) summary of the candidate’s philosophy, goals, and objectives in serving in this office.
Emerging professionals are the next generation of architects and a driving force for our profession’s future. As part of the community, I am acutely aware of the issues young professionals face. Architecture programs are seeing reduced enrollments, education and licensure costs are rising, and even established professionals show diminishing interest in professional network engagement. These issues cannot be solved overnight but they can be mitigated. I am extremely passionate about providing a support system for our younger members. I believe that AIA should alleviate their struggles and encourage retention in the profession. I am specifically interested in facilitating the licensure process that many people abandon due to life circumstances. Encouraging emerging professionals to start early and informing them of the process are key ways to ensure the growth of pioneering and socially aware architects. School outreach is equally important to attract great minds to our field. California, known for innovation in technology and the arts, offers unique opportunities. Our emerging architects should be well-represented addressing these challenges with creative solutions that will benefit the profession nationally. By supporting emerging professionals, easing the path to licensure, and engaging with schools, we can ensure a strong future for architecture.
Candidates are also permitted to submit a letter of support for their nomination from any individual, AIA member or otherwise. Subject: Young Architect Representative
Magdalini Vraila

Dear Selection Committee,

It is my honor and privilege to submit this letter to the American Institute of Architects, California Board of Directors to recommend Magdalini Vraila as the Young Architect Representative. In the time that I have worked with her, I have been greatly impressed by her unwavering commitment to excellence and her high level of professionalism. She continually seeks opportunities to challenge herself and well deserves this position.

I worked closely with Magdalini on a project for the California State University, Long Beach campus from fall of 2022 to fall of 2023. The project posed many challenges, which included navigating a fast-moving schedule, a changing scope, multiple user groups, and multiple submittal packages. However, throughout these challenges, Magdalini maintained an organized and methodical approach to her work and demonstrated exceptional problem-solving abilities, technical prowess and design sensitivity. She tackled every task head on, proactively educating herself on subjects and topics unfamiliar to her. I found myself relying upon her heavily and attribute much of the project's success to her dedication and tenacity.

In addition to meeting her project responsibilities, she served as the Co-Chair of our office's in-house AREU Committee, which is dedicated to assisting those pursuing licensure within our firm. She also served as the Director of the Emerging Professionals Committee for the AIA's Pasadena-Foothill Chapter. Through both roles, she has demonstrated strong leadership and communication skills.

Magdalini is an extraordinary professional and represents a future generation of architects that continuously push the envelope and whose contributions considerably better the practice.

For these reasons, I highly recommend Magdalini as the Young Architect Representative for AIA California.

Sincerely,
